

Northampton, MA — After many discussions by the ranking committee and several appeals from coaches, the final Dunlop Men's College Squash Association Team Rankings of the season are complete.

Although the results from the Men's National Team Championships are a significant factor in the final team rankings, the Men's College Squash Association does consider other factors as well. Despite defeating Bard 5-4 in the tournament, Purdue finished just behind Bard. The ranking committee and the Tournament Referee attempted multiple times to get an explanation from Purdue on the lineup used in the Bard match. Unfortunately, a response was never received from Purdue, so Bard moved ahead in the rankings.

Below are the 2010-2011 Men's College Squash Association Final Team Rankings. Listed after each school's name is their previous ranking. Teams listed in bold won a division at the Men's College Squash Association National Team Championships.
